The Katherine E. Nash Gallery is a research laboratory for the practice and interpretation of the visual arts. We believe the visual arts have the capacity to interpret, critique and expand on all of human experience. Our internationally recognized exhibitions, publications, and scholarship foster a center of discourse on the practice of visual art and its relationship to culture and community—a place where we examine our assumptions about the past and suggest possibilities for the future. The gallery plays an indispensable role in the educational development of University of Minnesota students, faculty, staff, and the community. Learn more at nash.umn.edu.
